

Support for Chairman Cassidy, Colleagues Investigation into Abortion Drug Manufacturers; Call for FDA to Crack Down on Illegal Online Sellers

March 25, 2026

“Abortion numbers are up, not down after Dobbs, driven by mail-order drugs flooding the states without regard for their laws,” said Marjorie Dannenfelser, President of Susan B. Anthony Pro-Life America. “We are now at over 1.1 million abortions per year. Companies whose sole source of revenue is abortion drugs—which carry a black box warning—are raking in millions while their inherently risky, abuse-prone drug sends thousands of women to emergency rooms, enables abusers, systematically kills countless unborn children, and brazenly undermines democratically enacted state protections. Their disregard for even the few remaining safety standards, and the lack of transparency around these secretive entities, is deeply troubling. Chairman Cassidy and fellow pro-life senators are boldly confronting this crisis head-on, demanding real accountability and safety for women and girls. It’s time for the FDA to act.”

“These letters raise serious and long-overdue questions about whether federal protocols are being followed—and whether women are being put at risk as a result,” said Carol Tobias, President of National Right to Life. “Women deserve real medical care, not drugs dispensed through anonymous websites with little to no oversight. We commend the Senate HELP Committee for taking these concerns seriously and look forward to meaningful action that prioritizes women’s health and safety.”

“These letters are a crucial step forward in holding abortion drug traffickers and those who enable them accountable,” said Joy Stockbauer of the Family Research Council. “Abortion drugs are dangerous weapons with the power to kill both unborn children and their mothers. The American people deserve to know why basic information about the manufacturers behind these deadly drugs has been concealed for so long. Moreover, the American people deserve to know that our federal agencies will stop the trafficking of illegal abortion drugs across our borders and protect women and their unborn children by all available means.”

“Senator Cassidy is right to hold the FDA accountable for the dangers of mifepristone,” said Lila Rose, Founder and President of Live Action. “Data show that one in ten women who take abortion pills experience serious complications, yet basic safeguards have been stripped away. Women and their children are being put at risk. The FDA must act immediately to restore protections and put their safety first.”

“The growing presence of online abortion drug distribution networks requires urgent and decisive action,” said Erica Inzina, J.D., Policy Director for Louisiana Right to Life. “Mothers and their unborn children are irreparably harmed by this reckless scheme while manufacturers look the other way and the FDA delays in taking action. We hear over and over from women who are left with little to no recourse after being coerced into taking abortion drugs or misled about their safety. The only time they receive any semblance of healthcare in this process is when things go wrong, which is not an uncommon occurrence. Louisiana Right to Life is grateful for Chairman Cassidy’s leadership in urging manufacturers and the FDA to prioritize the health and safety of women and their babies over profits and politics.”
